MY COUSIN CHARLES FRALEIGH OF BLOOMFIELD - PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY, ONTARIO GOT COPIES OF THESE PAGES WHILE ON A TRIP TO NEW YORK STATE. THERE ARE COPIES OF THE BOOK IN ALBANY & KINGSTON N.Y. LIBRARIES.

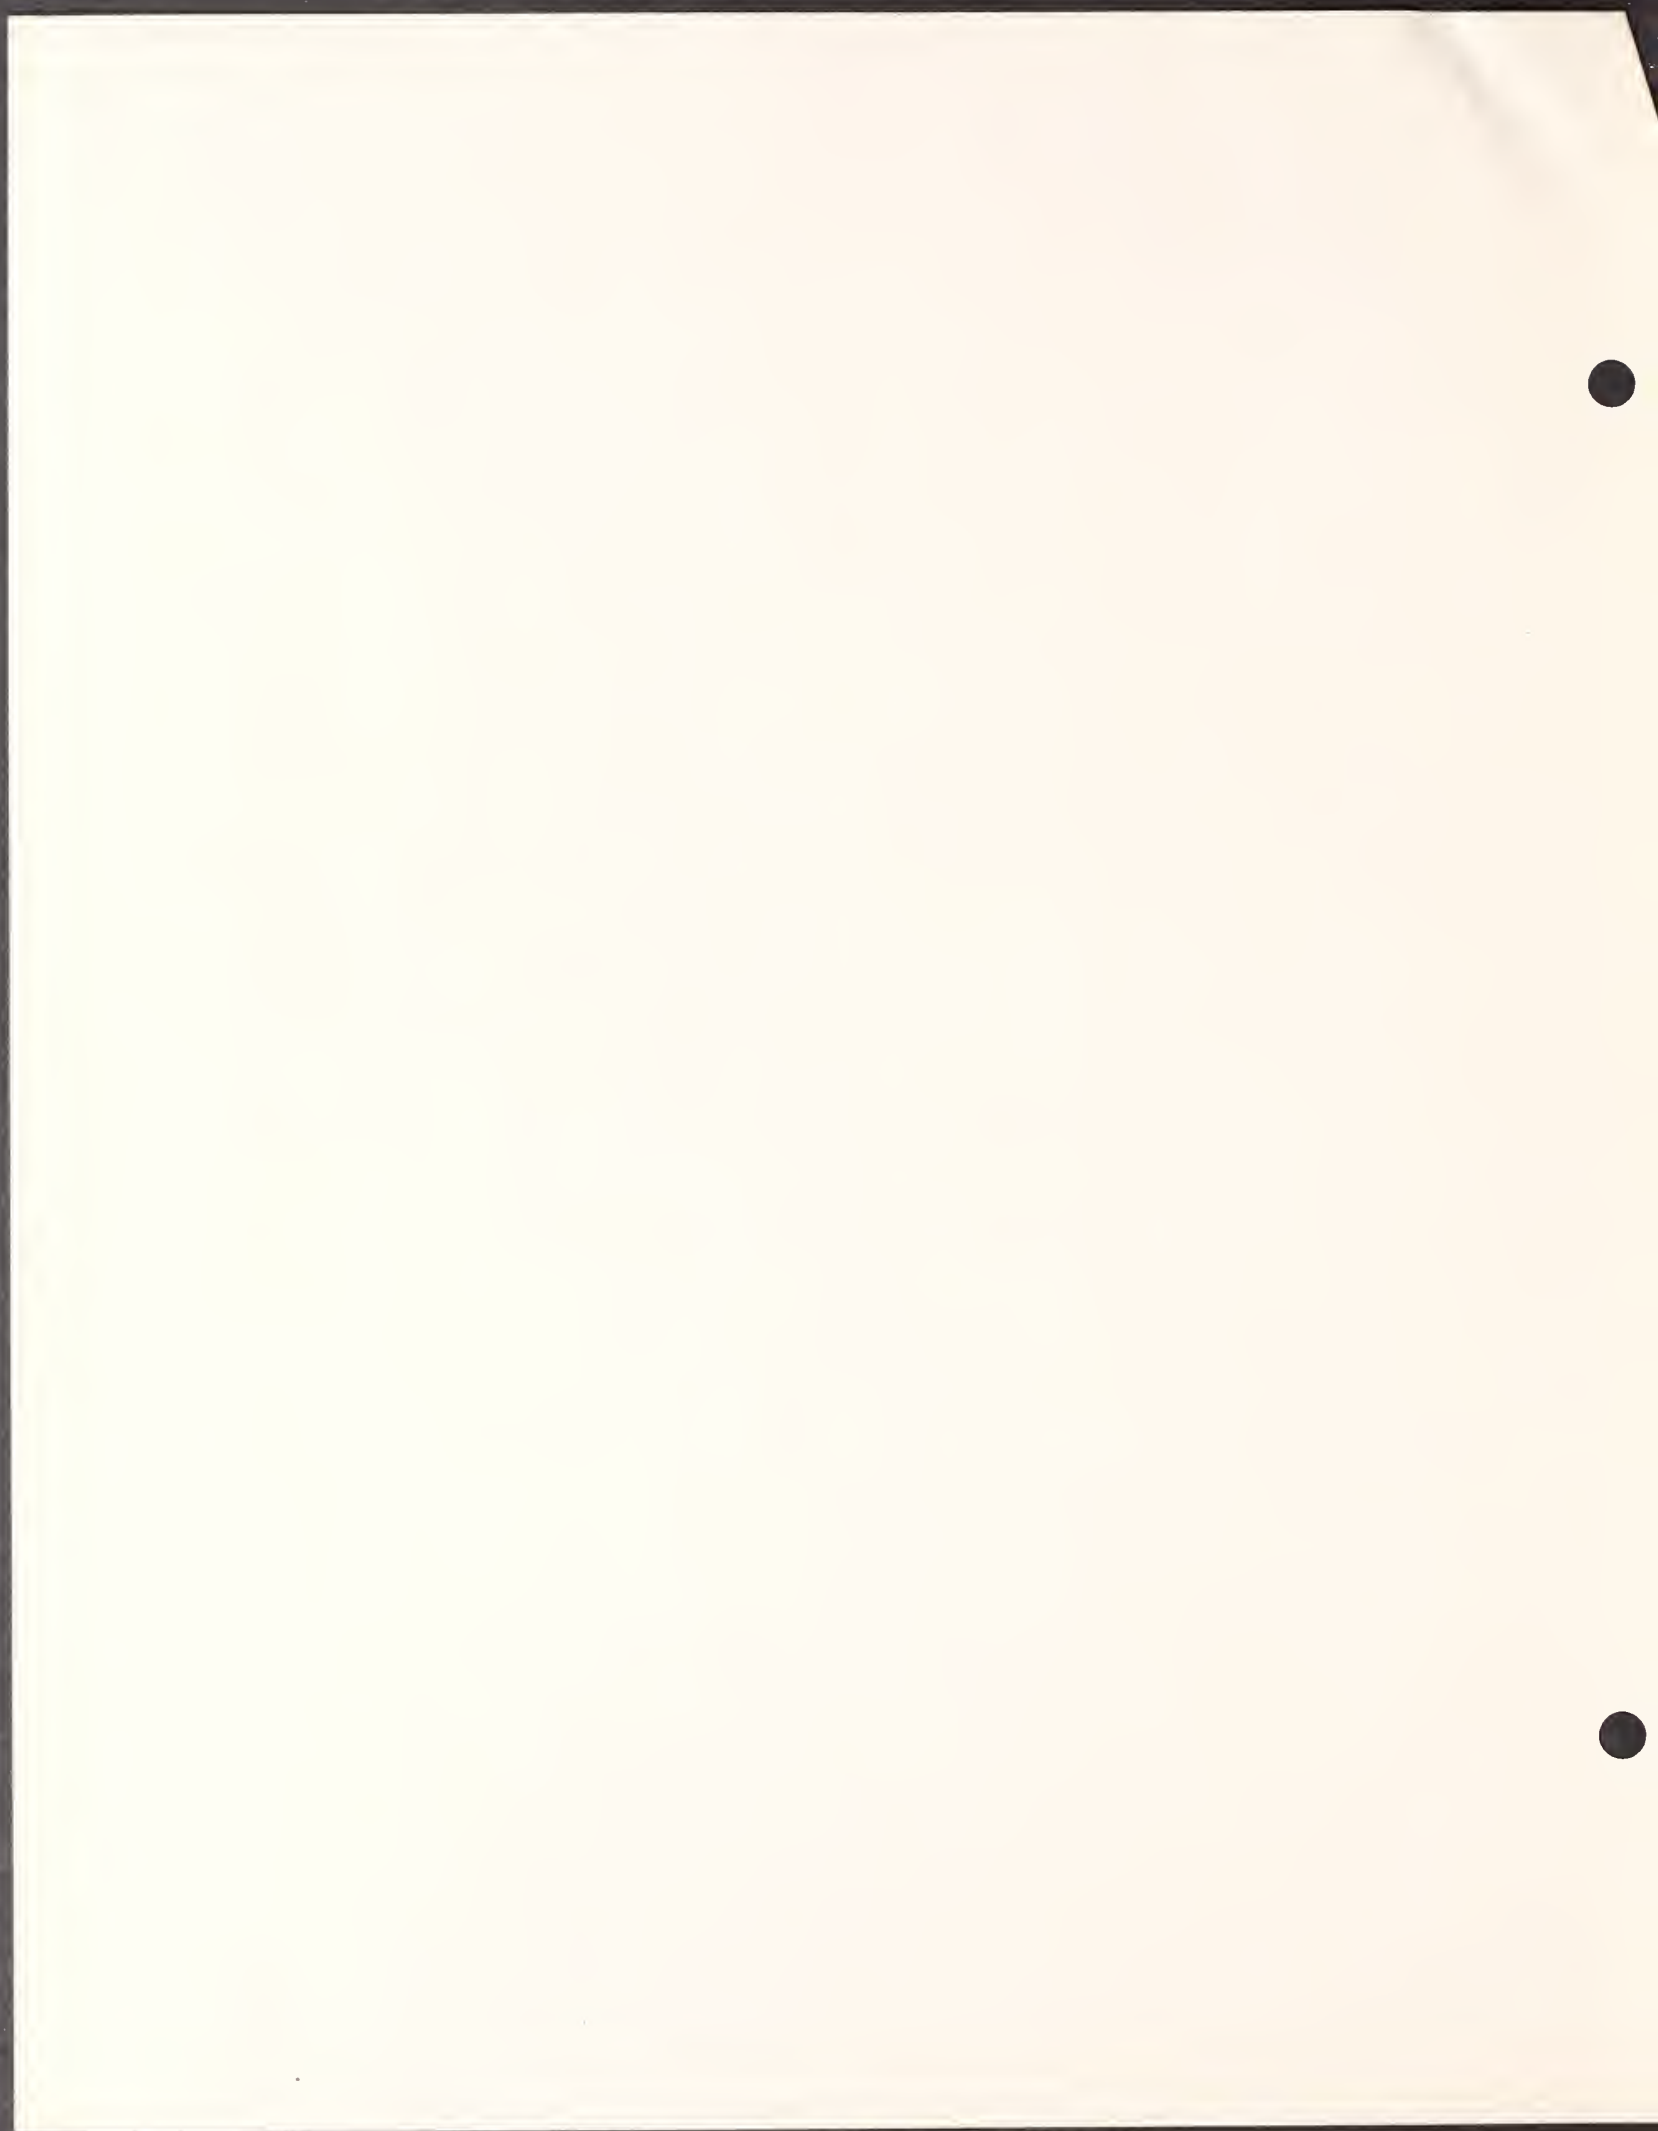

THESE PAGES CLEARLY GIVE THE RELATIONSHIP OF ABRAHAM OF QUEBEC AND ISAAC & JACOB THE TWIN BROTHERS OF ABRAHAM. JACOB CAME TO CANADA (SEE NOTE 10) ISAAC REMAINED IN THE U.S.A. & ABRAHAM CAME TO QUEBEC. JACOB WAS THE FOUNDER OF OUR BRANCH OF THE FAMILY.

15 ISAAC WAS THE GRANDFATHER OF DR. MARTIN FRELIGH AND THE GREAT GRANDFATHER OF DR EDWIN GALE FRELIGH, BOTH QUITE PROMINENT IN THEIR TIME. THIS IS TOLD IN THE ABOVE MENTIONED BOOK AS FOLLOWS BELOW. IT SHOULD BE NOTED THAT ABRAHAM IS ALSO REFERRED TO AS A DOCTOR IN THE BOOK.

NOTE 6 PAGE A(10) B

- 16 WE NOTE WITH INTEREST THE VARIOUS SPELLINGS OF THE NAME IN THE OLD DOCUMENTS WE HAVE COPIES OF. IN A CONVEYANCE OF LAND FROM HENRY TO HIS SON PETER DATED 1761 THE SPELLING IS FREELIGH. IN THE KATSBAAN CHURCH RECORDS FOR 1756 & 1757 THERE IS AN ENTRY OF A BAPTISM FOR GRIETJE FRÖLICH AND FOR ISAAC AND JACOB FRELIGH. LATER DOCUMENTS ARE MORE CONSISTENT, USING FRELIGH.
17. WE HAVE ON HAND THE ORIGINAL LAND GRANT (COPY) TO HENRY FROM THE TRUSTEES OF THE TOWN OF KINGSTON NEW YORK DATED 1726 OR 1736. IT IS DIFFICULT TO READ. I CANNOT MAKE COPIES SINCE IT IS A PHOTOSTAT. IT APPEARS HE WAS ALREADY ON THE LAND & CAME UP THE HUDSON FROM AN EARLIER LOCATION.

ORIGIN OF FAMILY

The family is German, they were mostly from the Palatinate of the Rhine. During the 17th Century they were persecuted along with the other Protestant groups and sought a new place to live. They fled by the thousands to the friendly camp of the Duke of Marlborough who commanded the Allied Armies in Europe. Queen Anne in 1709 sent a fleet to pick them up at Rotterdam and took about 7,000 to England. 3,000 were sent to New York. Some went to Ireland. The majority that went to New York found homes in Pennsylvania among the Quakers.

The Martin Fralick branch were in the ship chandler business with other members of their Palatine group. It seems to have been a co-op venture and was located at West Camp, Ulster County, on the Hudson River north of Saugerties.

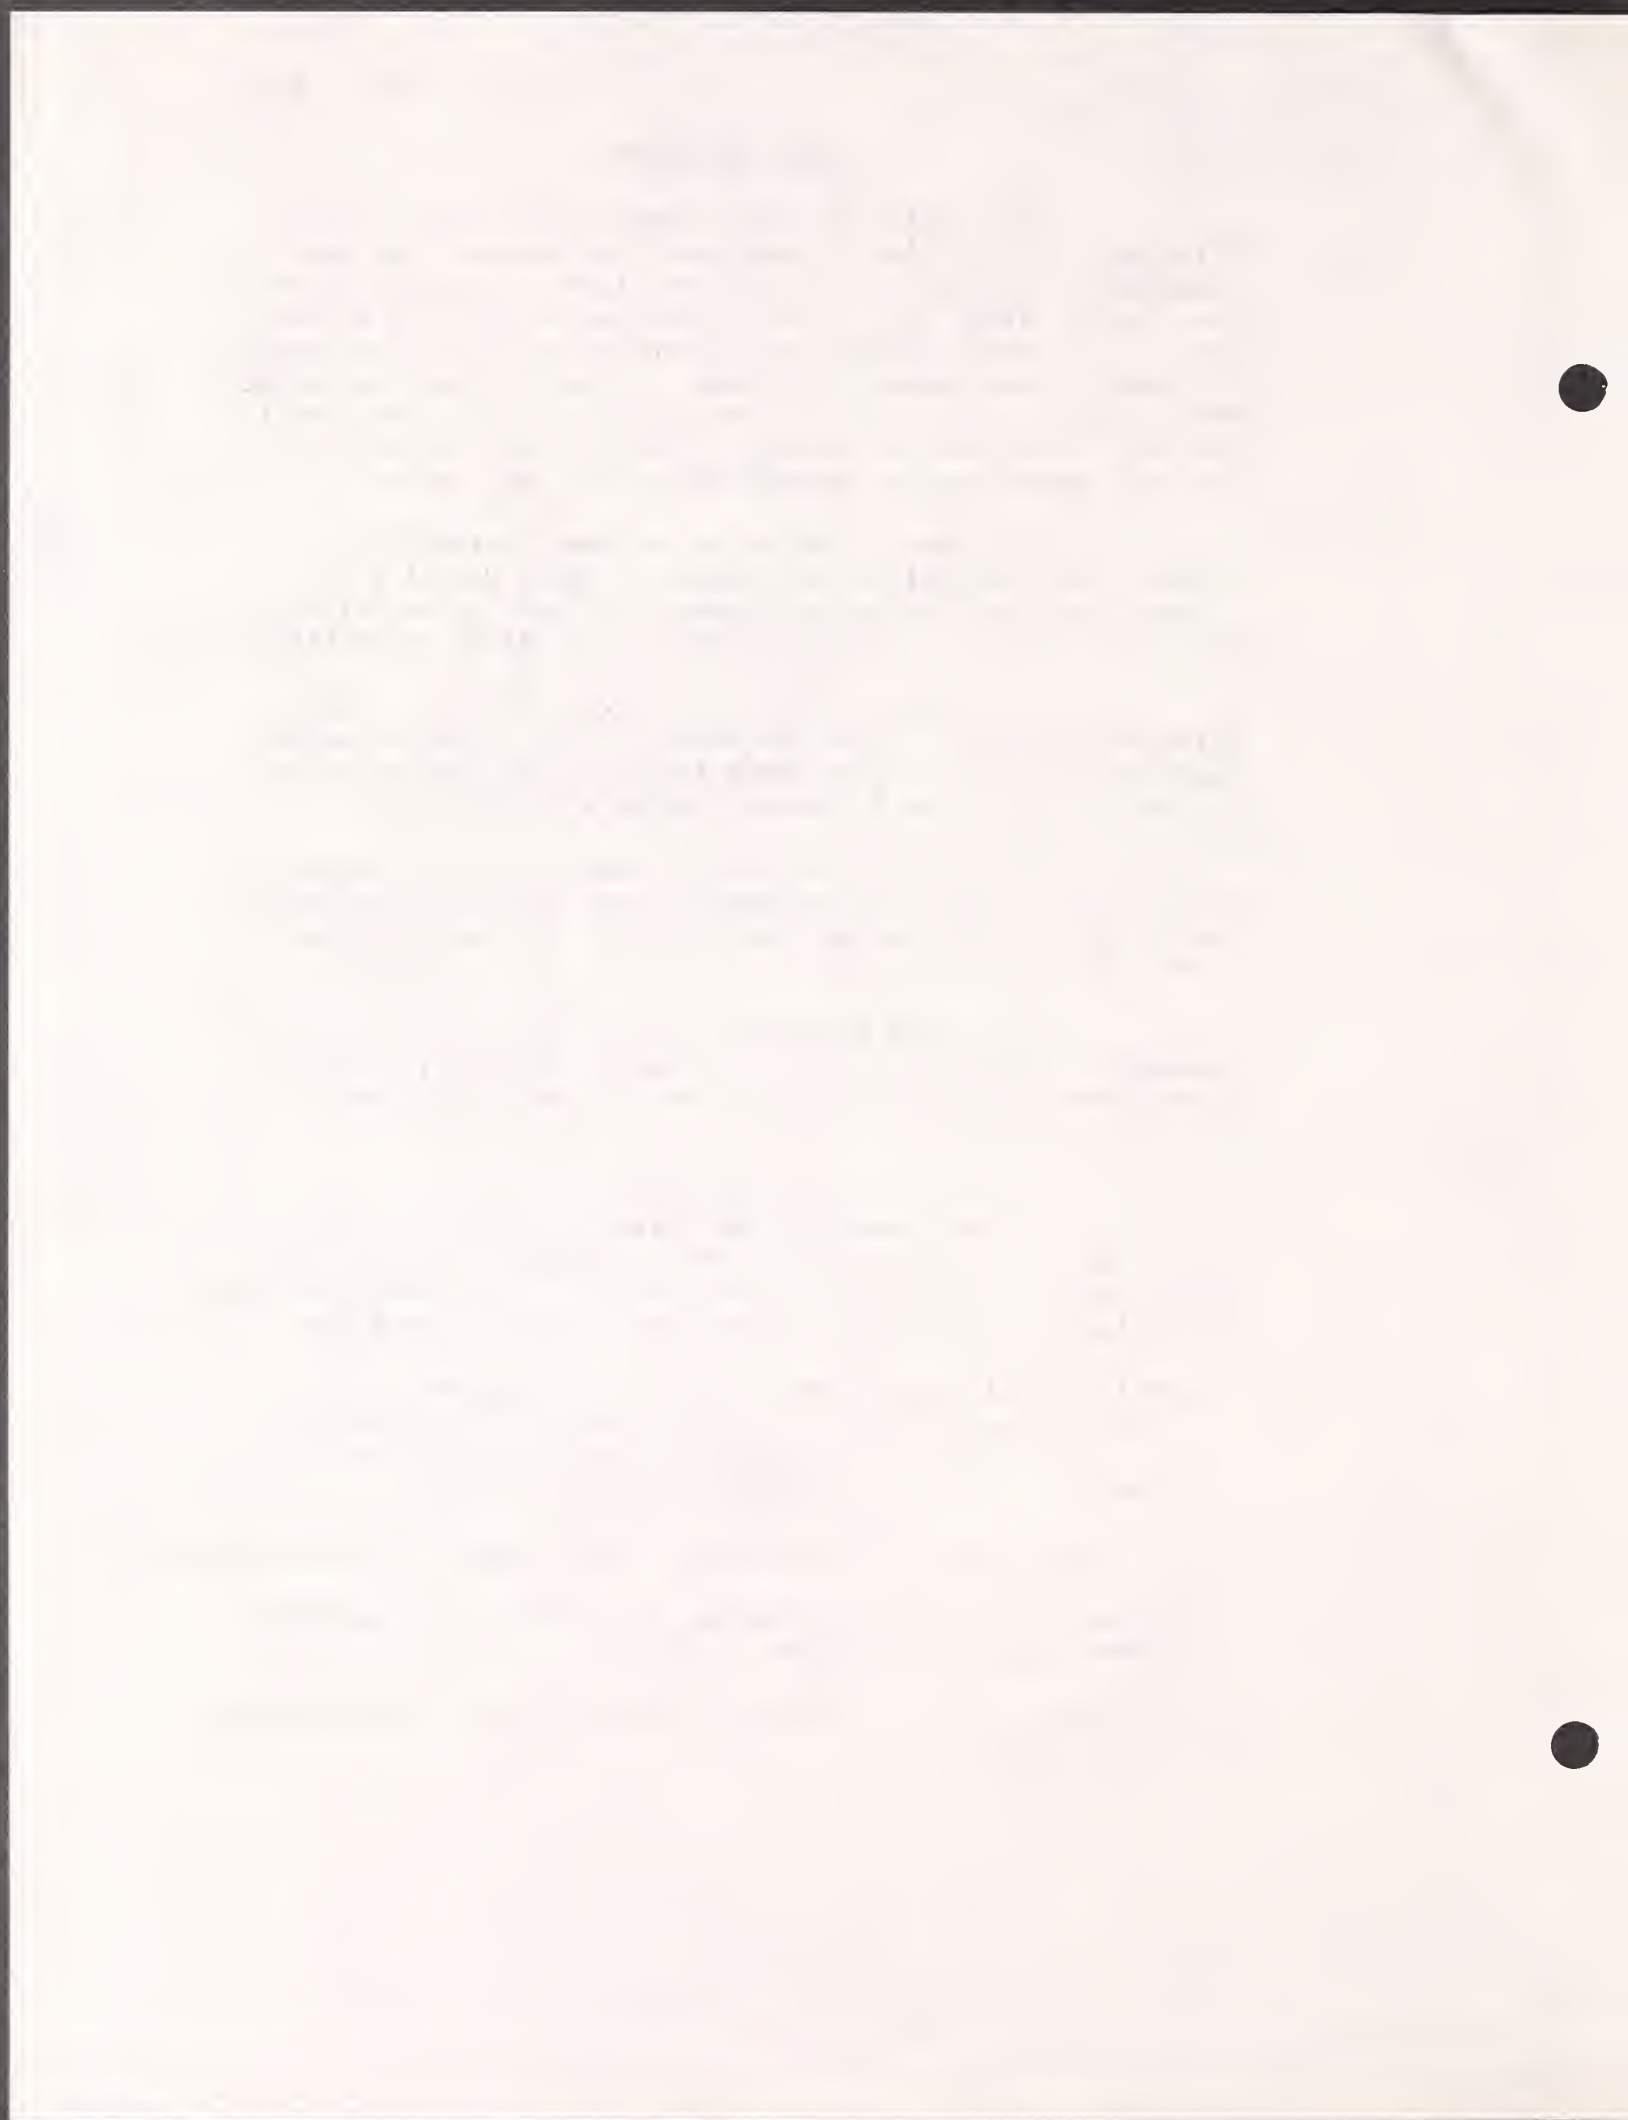

The business was not a success and they moved inland near KATSBAN under the shadow of the Catskill mountains and took up land. It seems that they had some connection with the shipping business in Germany before emigrating.

There is a Palatine Lutheran Church in London near Drapers Hall called the Dutch Church which was bombed out during the last war and we have reason to believe that they spent some time in England.

They were mostly farmers for the 1st and 2nd generation and spread to Dutchess County, New York. They are quite numerous in the Red Hook Rhinebeck area, also around Saugerties and Kingston, N.Y.

They came to Canada during and after the war. Those that did come served in the forces. Martin was in the secret service and his sons in Butler's Rangers and Jessup's Corps. One or two also in Rogers' Rangers. Lewis was a colonel on Washington's staff and did not come until after the war.

1. Martin and his sons Peter, Zacarias, John, Jacob, Lewis, Christopher and Daughter Hannah to Ernstown near Bath on the Bay of Quinte. Lewis did not come until 1806 and is the ancestor of the late Judge Fralick of Belleville.
2. Adam and John to Nova Scotia. Adam came later to Upper Canada.
3. Abraham to Frelighsburg, Quebec. This branch died out with Galoway Fralick. See chart.
- 3(a). Jacob, brother of Abraham, to Prince Edward County, Ontario. See note 10.

28 COMMEMORATIVE BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD

LOCATION: ALBANY & KINGSTON N.Y.
LIBRARIES.

MARTIN FRELIGH, M. D., was born in Dutchess county, N. Y., January 23, 1813, son of Samuel Freligh, whose father, Isaac Freligh, was a brother of Abram and Jacob Freligh.

These three brothers were sons of John Freligh, and grandsons of Henry Freligh, who has a prominent place in German history for the very active part he took in favoring the advancement and spread of Protestantism. The Freligh family emigrated to this country in an early day.

Old Dominic Freligh, of New Jersey, Dr. Abram Freligh, the founder of Frelighsburg, Canada; Isaac Freligh, of the town of Clinton, Dutchess Co., N. Y., afterward of Clifton Park, Saratoga county, and Jacob Freligh, of Canada West, all being early members of the family on this side of the Atlantic. He is one of the Knickerbockers of New York, as his grandfather, his father and himself were born on the banks of the Hudson river. While a resident of Dutchess and Ulster counties Samuel Freligh, father of Dr. Martin Freligh, was engaged in farming and milling, but all his brothers and sisters were engaged in literary pursuits. On his mother's side he is connected with the Stoughtenburghs and Ackerts, who were from Holland.

Martin Freligh attended school up to the age of about fifteen years, when, through reverses in his father's business, he was thrown entirely upon his own resources. He entered the store of Henry Barclay (brother of Anthony Barclay, the late British Consul), who also employed him in his paper manufactory, was bookkeeper in Lawton's Book & Stationery house, and teacher in the Methodist Academy at Paterson, N. J. While engaged in these various pursuits every spare hour was employed in cultivating his mind in the study of the classics and history, and subsequently law and medicine. Wheeler's Criminal Cases presented much of interest to him, and as they involved so many nice questions in medical jurisprudence he almost imperceptibly drifted into the study of medicine. Entering the office of Dr. C. C. Kiersted, a former student of the celebrated Dr. Brodhead, he studied for the time prescribed by law, and then attended lectures at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Western District of New York, where, in 1834, he received his diploma and license to practice; subsequently an honorary degree was conferred on him. A few days after receiving his license he commenced practice in Saugerties, Ulster Co., N. Y., where he remained six or seven years, though at first he met with violent opposition there, being regarded as an interloper by the three physicians already established in that field. However, through the indefatigable energy and industry which always formed a prominent feature of his character, and the sterling talent which he displayed, he succeeded in obtaining the largest practice ever enjoyed by a physician in that locality. It was while here that he became convinced of the value and true worth of homeopathy, under the advice of Dr. Vanderburg, of New York, whom he frequently met in consultation and aided in the selection of remedies, and he was so astonished by the many remarkable cures of malignant dysentery and other diseases effected by that system that he embraced it irrevocably. Although he had previously witnessed its virtues in several well-marked cases, he had been too prejudiced, or perhaps unwilling, to acknowledge its merits, but in 1851 he removed to New York City and commenced the practice of homeopathy on his own account, continuing it up to 1863, in which year he relinquished the greater part of his practice to his son and only child, Dr. Edwin G. Freligh, a young man well qualified and evidently fitted by nature to follow in his father's footsteps. From that time he confined himself more especially to organic diseases, his time being principally occupied in consultation and visiting patients at a distance.

His practice was very large and not confined to the city, for he was called for consultation and actual treatment to almost every part of the United States and not infrequently to Europe, sometimes at a very considerable expense to his patients; however, they considered that they received a full "quid pro quo" the most skilled attendance for the amount paid him for fees, and in many instances he received valuable presents besides. As an evidence of his skill as a surgeon it may be mentioned that when but twenty-three or twenty-four years of age he and his then partner, Dr. Thomas H. Hamilton, performed the wonderful operation of tying the primitive carotid arteries in a case of epilepsy, with success; the patient operated on subsequently became well and robust. Another case was the removal of internal hemorrhoidal tumors, a report of which operation can be found in the Journal of Medicine and Collateral Sciences for September, 1847. He also disarticulated the right arm at the shoulder joint, tied the subclavian artery, extirpated tumors, and also performed various operations on the eye and throat. These are but a few of the cases which might be cited in proof of his skill as a surgeon, but they are sufficient to show that he was thoroughly educated in his profession, self-reliant, and confident in his own ability.

Dr. Freligh was appointed to many professional positions of honor and responsibility. He was appointed to the Chair of Institute of Medicine in his alma mater, surgeon to the Hudson River Railroad Company, medical officer in chief to the Globe Mutual Life Insurance Company, and surgeon to the New York Police. His literary labors were also extensive, and among his productions may be mentioned a monograph on "The Toxicological Properties of Lead and its Various Compounds," a treatise on Epilepsy, a critical review of "Armstrong's Third Division of Scarlatina Maligna," "The Pathology and Cure of Consumption," "Freligh's Homeopathic Practice" (which has reached the thirteenth edition), "Homœopathia Familiar" in Spanish, "The Homeopathic Pocket Companion," "Freligh's Compilation of the Homeopathic Materia Medica," and many articles on the proving of drugs, such as the Apocynum Cannabinum, Cannabis Indica, Mercury a Solvent to the Living Solids, also an article on Amenorrhœa and its effects on the female economy, some of which have appeared in the medical journals and recent medical works. He possessed a most extraordinary memory, being able to repeat almost verbatim et literatim whole books which he had studied in his earlier years. He was never a specialist, having been thoroughly familiar with every branch of medicine, surgery and collateral sciences, and he never devoted himself to any one particular class of diseases.

Among his patients Dr. Freligh could claim some of the most distinguished personages, but while his patients belonged for the most part to the wealthier classes, he never ignored the claims of the poor, ever evincing the greatest readiness to assist them to the extent of his ability. His character was remarkable for the deep sensibility ever displayed in his practice. He entered heartily into the feelings of his patients and their friends, rejoicing with them over favorable symptoms, and keenly sympathizing with them upon the approach of danger. This sympathetic disposition naturally gained for him many warm friends, but, like all eminent men, he had his enemies, those who from envy or jealousy, or possibly more laudable causes, differed with him and were opposed to him. In personal intercourse he was always courteous and polite, and in conversation even fascinating, his retentive memory enabling him to relate interesting and valuable anecdotes and personal experiences. Throughout his busy career he displayed remarkable talent in economizing time, always having something on hand and never procrastinating. He was emphatically a self-made man, and a self-reliant one, possessing all the attributes necessary to secure success and win the confidence and esteem of all with whom he came in contact.

Dr. Freligh was married at Saugerties, February 4, 1834, to Susan A. Kiersted, daughter of Dr. Christopher Kiersted, of Saugerties, and by her had one son, Edwin Gale. This wife died in 1852, and the Doctor was again married, this time April 29, 1854, to Louise G. De La Valle, an English lady. Dr. Freligh was a Republican in his political views, and took quite an active part in politics, although never an office-seeker, but one who worked from principle, and had the good of his party at heart. He was a member of the Hahnemann Academy of Physicians. He was a personal friend of Rev. Dr. Newman, of New York City, also a warm friend of Rev. Dr. Deems, another celebrated New York clergyman. He was a very public-spirited man, and one of the leading citizens of his time and locality. Dr. Freligh's death took place August 31, 1889, and his remains were buried in the family cemetery at Rhinebeck, New York.

Edwin Gale Freligh, M. D., was born at Saugerties, Ulster county, August 2, 1833, the only child of Dr. Martin Freligh, above mentioned. His education was commenced at Rhinebeck Academy, and the classical portion of it completed at Chelsea Collegiate Institute, in New York. He matriculated in New York Medical College, where he followed the customary course of lectures with earnestness and industry, graduating from the institution in 1860. After obtaining his diploma he at once entered into practice with his father. He furthermore graduated in chemistry under Prof. Doremus, taking a separate diploma for that branch of science.

Independently of his medical acquirements, Dr. Freligh was a mineralogist of some note, and also an artist of much taste and skill. In 1863 his father retired from the more active duties of his profession, and turned his practice over to his son, together with the avails of his long professional career, yielding an annual income of some $25,000. Dr. Edwin G. Freligh was a man of brilliant talents, of a scientific turn of mind, and was one of the best-known practitioners of New York City. He died December 3, 1892, unmarried.

CHARLES D. BRUYN, a resident of Kingston, by his own efforts, and through his individual merits, has risen from the ranks and to-day occupies a position of affluence. He was born November 29, 1834, in the town of Shawan-

LAND PETITIONS

1. The index on the following pages gives the location in the Public Archives, Ottawa, of Land Petitions for members of the Fralick family.
2. We have separated the Petitions from the notes on the family and placed them in a separate book. They have been separated into family groups under the headings of location.
3. These petitions do not, in all cases, cover the first grants made. No record exists of the first grants as the land was drawn for by lot at the place the settlers first landed.
